Career Summary

Forty two years spent in business. As detailed below, my career past and present has mainly been based in the industrial manufacturing sector, managing substantial businesses successfully. My career to date has been most fulfilling in that I have been involved in the broad spectrum in all that business entails. Developing companies, sales and marketing here in the UK and in numerous foreign countries. I have been responsible in numerous factory developments, “the white heat” of the technology revolutions, purchase and sale or revitalisation of companies, etc.

In addition to mainstream activity of operating business, I have maintained a number of non-executive directorships outside my mainstream activity in both private and public sectors. These have enabled me to input into different business areas as well as developing a wider business perspective, that has been most useful.
